Gentlemen, The lawsuit was initiated far too early in the life of a new company-Microsoft. The company has grown rapidly and has gained substantial marketshare but at the same time it created vast numbers of job and enterprise opportunities for others. And competition was beginning to rise up against Microsoft. If the company had been left alone natural competitive forces probably arisen evened the playing field. In any event enough damage has now been done to Microsoft and to the economy. Lets put it behind us and wind up the affair.David L. Samders davidlsanders@msn.com
